24TH AUGUST 2023 : ONLINE

OVERVIEW

Business Responsibility has today assumed centre stage with the changed expectations of society from businesses in recent years. The business of business is no longer the maximisation of shareholder value. By acting responsibly and keeping in mind the impact of their actions on people, the society and the environment; companies can build greater trust and strengthen their relationships with all of their stakeholders. Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) reflects a company's recognition of the fact that 'doing good is good for business', and businesses are increasingly turning to CSR to make a difference and build a positive brand image.

AIMA is pleased to announce the 10th edition of its 'Business Responsibility Summit and Project Excellence Contest & Recognition' which will focus on the stellar role that corporates and civil society have played in executing CSR projects. The Summit & Contest is being anchored by Dr. Bhaskar Chatterjee, a well-recognised name on the subject. We want to honour and award those companies and civil society organisations who have done outstanding work in this field. The Summit will be a platform for dissemination and recognition of CSR work that makes our country and our planet a far better place to live in.
